HANDS OF DORCAS

Tailoring Training Centre

The ladies of the Hands of Dorcas Tailoring Training School, based at the Olive Church campus, Hyderabad, India.

The training is making so much difference to the lives of these women. Many of them are from a slum community and were scratching a living rag picking on the local rubbish dump. Rag picking brought with it many associated health complaints including tuberculosis, asthma and skin diseases.

This is Lalita (pictured above and right), she is really grateful for all the skills she's learnt and can make dresses, skirts, blouses, trousers etc. She is able now to earn the equivalent of £40 a month which is enough to support her family. She wants to recommend the training to other women. The sense of community and support between the group is another real benefit.

We hope to continue giving each woman who graduates her own sewing machine. Please join us in praying for this and if you can, donate towards this, £70 will pay for a sewing machine and help to lift a family out of extreme poverty.
